One day a new kid named Allen came to school.
Allen was an exchange student from another planet.

Allen had some photos. He showed them to his new friends and told them all about his home planet Goopitor. It was the best show and tell the children had ever seen!

When the bell rang, everyone went outside to play.
Some children were playing on swings and some were skipping.

Allen really wanted to have a turn skipping. He hovered around but no matter how much he tried, his friends didn't realise he wanted to join in. It was so frustrating.

Hup-boo, hup-boo.

Allen was sad. He wanted to play too, but he didn't know how to join in the fun.

One of the children saw that Allen was sad and asked if she could help.

Hey Allen, you look sad,
what's wrong?

Oh, you want to skip.
That's no problem. You just have to ask 'Can I have a turn?'

Allen went back to the skipping.
This time his new buddy came with him.

Can I play too?

"Of course you can join in!" they said.
Allen was so happy, he wanted to jump for joy,
but thought he might skip for joy instead.

THE END
